When to Hire a Geriatric Care Manager

A "professional relative" can help provide care and resources when family members aren't always available.

Old age, it has been said, ain't no place for sissies. As minds and bodies falter, the activities of daily living get harder and harder. Children of older parents know all too well that their aging parents need varying degrees of help. When that becomes too much for them to handle, one solution is to hire a geriatric care manager.

Kith Elder Care Team Member Spotlight

For over 20 years, Bonney has worked as an advocate for older adults and those with disabilities. Much of her career was spent as a geriatric care manager for Catholic Housing and Community Services of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia. In her time there, she founded and developed the Saint Monica Eldercare Program, which became a model for care management and service provision throughout the Archdiocese. Bonney also has a broad knowledge of Medicare and enjoys advising individuals in choosing insurance that best meets their needs. Since retiring from full time
